AngelVision Again Rated One of the Best Companies to Work for in Oregon

(Portland, OR) AngelVision Technologies—for the third time in five years—has been ranked by Oregon Business magazine as one of the 100 best companies to work for in Oregon. AngelVision has also appeared on the Inc. magazine list of fastest-growing private U.S. companies for four consecutive years. AngelVision provides comprehensive advertising and marketing services to clients throughout North America, as well as in Europe and Asia.

Jeff Otis, AngelVision president, said, “We are obviously pleased to be recognized once again as one of the best companies to work for in the state. This allows us to attract and hire the very best employees, who do outstanding work and help make our clients successful and profitable.”

Not only was AngelVision ranked as one of Oregon’s “100 Best,” the company was also rated by Oregon Business third-best in the state for two of the last four years for providing the best employee benefits package.

Otis credits company founder and CEO Michael Jingoian with creating a culture that fosters phenomenal growth and excellent employee morale. “Our employees perform amazingly well, because Mike has done a great job keeping them enthusiastic and passionate about helping our clients,” Otis said.

To reward hard work and keep spirits high, Jingoian declares capricious holidays like “Pirate Day,” where employees competed for best buccaneer costume and in a cook-off that featured pirate-themed dishes. Jingoian once hired the cast of the Northwest Children’s Theater production of The Wizard of Oz to interrupt a company meeting and conduct a surprise performance.
